New Hoop Craze Spreading Rapidly

By MARY REIF SCHNEIDER

It can also be shot — sort of a combination bow and arrow.

A new epidemic, Hooper-Drooper, is spreading through Lincoln.

Hooper-Drooper is a type of spring fever that's contagious with kids. It literally has them flipping their lids.

This latest toy fad is a combination of the old Hoola-Hoop and Frisbee — a disc that's tossed through the air.

The Hooper-Drooper looks like some enterprising toy manufacturer cut a few inches off the Hoola-Hoop, added a small plastic ring for the center and six rubberbands to hold it together.

What does the Hooper-Drooper do? Watch a child with imagination and see. Less imaginative adults will find a complete set of instructions for 14 different games attached to the Hooper-Drooper.

It can be thrown like a boomerang, much like the Frisbee of several years ago.

Cody's Cabin Is Nearly Finished

By DEAN TERRILL

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

North Platte — It's an old skill and it takes some new learning, but it will soon have Buffalo Bill's "Old Loggy" cabin back in business.

In 1877 it had served as the Dismal river headquarters for William F. Cody and his cattle partner, Maj. Frank North. This summer the cabin, restored along with Scouts Rest Ranch itself, will become "part of our destiny as the greatest show of western Americana in the world."

"Buffalo Bill was the greatest showman who ever lived, so we're proud to help him complete a project," said George LeRoy, superlative-loving superintendent. "His dream was to build the most beautiful ranch in the world."

Dismantled and moved to Scouts Rest this winter, the cabin awaits only a few hand-hewn log replacements by the Nebraska Game Commission.

It will then be "every bit as authentic," LeRoy figures, as when Mrs. May Trego of North Platte honeymooned in it '96. Her Lazy T Ranch was the cabin's donor.

Forced To Build

Literally forced to build his sideshow before he can bark it, LeRoy has amassed from 1,200 to 1,500 museum-type items in a single year. Already his ballooning has included close to 150 film showings and lectures.

"There are so many facets even beyond the Wild West Show and establishment of the world's first rodeo," noted the superintendent. "Take for a starter the fact Cody made between three and six million dollars and then died a pauper."

The hoop also has rattlers inside it, adding to its appeal for the young.

A department store toy manager said Hooper-Droopers arrived in Lincoln just last week. "They're rivalling last spring's skate boards which are still top sellers," he said. Several toy departments were sold out of Hooper-Droopers keepsakes. One memento to be shown is a chariot presented by Queen Victoria in 1887.

Cody was a lover of uniforms, samples including even the colorful set given to firemen after they tried to save his home in North Platte

Added To Legend

The showman's love of legend caused him purposely to add to it. A giant beer mug reminds, for example, of the signed pledge limiting himself to three drinks a day—but no size specified.

Bill's friendship with the Indians brought so many gifts he changed his leather gauntlets every time he entered the arena. He wanted no brave to feel slighted—and the number for display indicates that none was.

Cody was a collector of memorabilia on travels that afforded much opportunity. Many of the items — letters, guns, photos, circus souvenirs — came from the home of his North Platte sister, Mrs. Mae Decker.

Supplementing the scores of tangibles received from several states are news tidbits gained from a perusal of Telegraph-Bulletin files. Turned up by LeRoy's daughter Cheryl, for instance, was the fact Buffalo Bill had fronted President McKinley's inaugural parade.

The Game Commission acquired the ranch, one of its favorite targets for tourism, approximately three years ago. Its 19-room house and once-lush barn ("Every stall was pure white") have been moving toward full restoration ever since.

Big Boom

The big boom is anticipated this summer after a grand opening date that is still undecided. Meanwhile, work is being pushed in several directions on the place, just at the town's edge.

"We didn't even have signs up last year and 20,000 persons took our guided tours," said LeRoy. "This summer I'm expecting that many every week."

Other tourist teasers:

Jakarta, Indonesia — U.S. policy in Viet Nam was singled out for repeated attacks Sunday in a general African-Asia verbal broadside delivered against imperialism, colonialism and neocolonialism at the 10th anniversary celebration of the Bandung Conference.

President Sukarno of Indonesia, North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong and Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia took the lead in assailing U.S. policy as the celebration commemorating the first African-Asian conference went into full swing.

At a public ceremony in a sports hall filled with 5,000 people, Sukarno said the United States should withdraw from South Viet Nam "to avoid total defeat." He said the honorable way out for the Americans is to withdraw and "let the (Vietnamese) people solve their problem."

Sukarno called President Johnson's offer of $1 billion in aid to Southeast Asia "a contradiction."

He reiterated North Viet Nam's demand that the United States "should withdraw its troops from South Viet Nam, should stop its intervention and should stop its war actions against North Viet Nam."

Dong told a newsman later that if the Americans leave South Viet Nam there would be no problem left in Viet Nam.

Asked to comment on reports he is seeking a conference among the nations attending the celebration who are involved in the Viet Nam situation and that he is seeking general support from among the participants, Dong replied, "I cannot tell you anything."

Sihanouk, whose Cambodian regime has been leaning toward Communist China, said U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam are an attempt to escalate the war.

Good Access Roads Lacking

By VIRGIL FALLOON

Nebraska has some 100 recreational areas, but only four major state parks can be said to have "top-notch" access roads, according to a State Game Commission official.

Dale Bree, section chief for parks, said Fort Robinson, Niobrara, Ponca and Chadron State Parks have all-weather, hard-surface construction at an estimated cost of $100,000.

The roads to the other recreation areas under commission control range from gravel surfacing to dirt.

Most Are Close

"Most of the recreation areas or points of interest are near hard-surfaced highways," he said. "Some within a half mile."

But, he observed, even the nearest one is unreachable if adverse weather makes the road impassable or the visitor doesn't want to take some dust.

The roads to the other recreation areas under commission control range from gravel surfacing to dirt.

Contract Let

Earlier this month, a construction contract was let for the access road to Blue Stem Lake near Sprague, covering 9.8 miles at an approximate cost of $171,000.

On the drafting boards are one mile to Fremont Lakes from U.S. 30, $40,000; and 1.2 miles of the Memphis State road impassable or the visitor Park road, $35,000.

Other hard-surfacing improvement projects earmarked in the 1965-67 program:

—Neb. 98 access to Weigand Basin at Lewis and Clark Lake, four miles at $245,000.

—U.S. 34 access across Trenton Dam to U.S. 35, two miles at $40,000.

—Wagon Train Lake access road from Hickman, 4.5 miles at $130,000.

—Victoria Springs State Park access road from Anselmo, 6.7 miles at $139,000.

—Sherman County Reservoir road from Loup City, 5.3 miles at $219,000.

—Lamoyne to Otter Creek Park on the north side of Lake McConaughy, 7.4 miles at $124,000.

U.S. Navy Planes Fly 35 Strikes

Saigon, Viet Nam — Four propeller-driven U.S. Navy fighter-bombers daringly flew within 60 miles of Hanoi Easter Sunday. But they drew no opposition from communist jets in a day of heavy American air activity over the skies of North and South Viet Nam.

American planes flew to total of 32 air strikes in the South and three against the Communist North, including the probe shortly before midnight near the North Vietnamese capital.

A freak bomb explosion cost the life of a U.S. Air Force pilot during a strike against guerrilla targets within South Viet Nam. No other losses in American aircraft were reported in the raids.

The strikes against the North came from Navy fighter-bombers from the U.S. carriers Midway and Hancock. In the first raid, 14 navy planes sank a ferry boat with cannon and rocket fire at Giap Tam on the Song Troc River, about 60 miles north of the 17th parallel frontier. American spokesmen said early Monday.

Eleven other Navy planes followed up this raid later in the day, streaking northward along route 101 and pounding the communists' Long Thanh army barracks in the same general area.

In the final sortie, the four skyraiders followed route 15 from Vinh, 100 miles north of the 17th parallel, to a point about 60 miles south of Hanoi. They returned with all their ammunition, apparently unsuccessful in their attempt to search out military targets in the darkness.

U.S. officials said the American pilot was killed when a bomb he had just dropped at a Viet Cong position exploded prematurely in the air. The crippled Skyraider rolled into a dive and crashed in a burst of flame.

Easter On 'Teenagers Dike' Sees Crest Pass

At St. Paul, the Mississippi River crested a foot lower and three days earlier than had been expected. Strub said that, barring any additional heavy precipitation, the 26-foot level recorded late Friday appears to have been the crest. The river had backed off to 25.40 feet Sunday.

The St. Croix River at Stillwater edged slightly over its expected crest of 694 feet above sea level Sunday, and Strub said it would hold steady near that level for two or three days before pulling back.

The next thing we have to worry about is a little ice downstream upon other communities.

"I guess the kids got some thing to talk about when they get older," said Joseph Strub, river expert for the Weather Bureau.

"The next thing we have to worry about is a little ice downstream upon other communities."

"We may reach the time when Viet Nam will become a cemetery for American planes."

Vigils Continue As Workers Fight River

By The Associated Press

Thousands of workers sandbagged and kept an around the clock vigil at dikes along the Mississippi River from the east bank to the west bank.

Residents of the two east Moline, Ill., housing projects have been moving out of their twin cities in Minnesota at Caihao homes for the past two days.

Rock Island, Ill., was untouched behind a brand new seawall, but sandbagging and earth-moving on dikes continued throughout the entire

An autopsy was performed on Wright Sunday morning, police said.

4-H Clubs Are Adopted By Nebraska Urbanites

By W. M. ANTES
State 4-H Leader

A total of 5,788 Nebraska 4-H club members now live in cities of over 2,500 population. Although the 4-H program was originally conceived to meet the needs of farm boys and girls, it is rapidly being adopted by their city cousins. Wherever they live — farm, small town, or city — any boy or girl 10 through 18 years of age as of January 1 can be a 4-H club member.

The common image of 4-H has been that of a boy with his calf or pig and a girl with sewing or cooking. These projects are still good and remain popular with 4-H members.

However, these are only a few of the 25 project areas from which Nebraska boys and girls may choose. Many are adapted to urban, home and community situations.

Challenging

It is true that raising a hog or calf in the city may not make you popular with your neighbors! But the city boy can find 4-H electric, yard beautification, automotive, entomology, photography, and other projects just as challenging, educational and satisfying as his country counterpart.

City girls have long recognized the same practicability of the foods, clothing, and some living projects that have been seen by their rural cousins.

Four-H has a dual objective. The obvious one is that of teaching skill and understanding in producing goods, such as cattle, hogs, corn, cakes, dresses, and storage facilities.

The more important but often obscured objective is that of developing the individual boy or girl into an effective citizen, capable of assuming his or her economic, moral, social and civic responsibilities.

Accomplish Goals

Four-H work assists in accomplishing this goal through member participation in projects, activities and club organization. Projects provide an individual challenge to learn the "why and how" of the job being done, to develop skill in doing it, and the opportunity to experience the real satisfaction that comes from the accomplishment of something worthwhile.

Many club members have interests and needs.

gained business experience from their projects, have learned to enjoy work, and to develop confidence in their ability to earn a living.

Activities vary with the interest of the member and his friends in the club. They provide broadening experiences that lend confidence and develop skills in one's ability to make decisions and to get along with others.

The club itself provides a practical opportunity to practice democratic procedures, to develop leadership ability, and to work and play together.

The opportunities in 4-H under the guidance of volunteer leaders, uniquely and effectively supplement the training provided by the home, church, and school.

Four-H is an educational program of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Nebraska, conducted cooperatively with the U.S.D.A. and the county Extension services.

A 4-H Club consists of five or more individuals, 9 through 18 years of age as of January 1, under the guidance of one or more adult volunteer leaders. Each club has its own officers, and plans its own program to meet interests and needs of members.

The 33,000-plus Nebraska 4-H club members invite all Nebraskans of 4-H club age to join in this challenging experience. Regardless of where you live — city, small town, or farm — you will find projects and activities to meet your interests and needs.

Partly Restored Telephone Service

. . . WITH THE HELP OF DUKE THE DOG

Des Moines (Iowa) — Essential telephone services knocked out by collapse of the 6th Ave. bridge were restored Sunday — with the help of a dog named Duke.

Telephone company workers tied a line to the dog's collar, and fastened the other end to a cable.

Duke's master stood across the bridge and called him, and the dog carried the line across the weakened span. Workers then pulled the cable across.

Some Service

The small temporary cable enabled the telephone company to restore service to the state police radio headquarters, fire stations, fire call boxes and other essential services in a large area north of downtown Des Moines.

They were part of approximately 7,000 telephones knocked out when a bridge section about 100 feet long and two traffic lanes wide tumbled into the Des Moines River Saturday, snapping telephone cables strung underneath the span.

A Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. spokesman said it probably will be Wednesday before service can be restored to the thousands of homes left without service.

English Poipier

Duke is a registered English pointer owned by Jap Brown, a telephone company installer.

"We didn't want to risk a person on the bridge," a company spokesman explained, "so we tied a line to Duke's collar."

"His master stood on the other side of the bridge and called him. Duke carried the line across, and we then used it to drag the cable across."

About 125 telephone company workers were on the job Sunday setting up a new 440-foot pole line to support the 10 cables that carry telephone lines across the bridge.

A pole at each end was set in a pit some eight feet deep, and the other poles were anchored to it.

Northwestern Bell brought in 20 splicers from Cedar Rapids, Mason City, Ames, Ottumwa and Marshalltown to help with the mammoth job of splicing together the thousands of wires inside the cables.

A company spokesman said it will start restoring service by Monday morning to some parts of the area north of the river, but it probably will be Wednesday before the job can be completed. 4-H Clubs Are Adopted By Nebraska Urbanites

By W. M. ANTES
State 4-H Leader
A total of 5,783 Nebraska 4-H club members now live in cities of over 2,500 population. Although the 4-H program was originally conceived to meet the needs of farm boys and girls, it is rapidly being adopted by their city cousins. Wherever they live — farm, small town, or city — any boy or girl 10 through 18 years of age as of January 1 can be a 4-H club member.

The common image of 4-H has been that of a boy with his calf or pig and a girl with sewing or cooking. These projects are still good and remain popular with 4-H members.

However, these are only a few of the 25 project areas from which Nebraska boys and girls may choose. Many are adapted to urban, home and community situations.

Challenging

It is true that raising a hog or calf in the city may not make you popular with your neighbors! But the city boy can find 4-H electric, yard beautification, automotive, entomology, photography, and other projects just as challenging, educational and satisfying as his country counterpart.

City girls have long recognized the same practicability of the foods, clothing, and home living projects that have been seen by their rural cousins.

Four-H has a dual objective. The obvious one is that of teaching skill and understanding in producing goods, such as cattle, hogs, corn, cakes, dresses, and storage facilities.

The more important but often obscured objective is that of developing the individual boy or girl into an effective citizen, capable of assuming his or her economic, moral, social and civic responsibilities.

Accomplish Goals

Four-H work assists in accomplishing this goal through member participation in projects, activities and club organization. Projects provide an individual challenge to learn the "why and how" of the job being done, to develop skill in doing it, and the opportunity to experience the real satisfaction that comes from the accomplishment of something worthwhile.

Many club members have gained business experience from their projects, have learned to enjoy work, and to develop confidence in their ability to earn a living.

Activities vary with the interest of the member and his friends in the club. They provide broadening experiences that lend confidence and develop skills in one's ability to make decisions and to get along with others.

The club itself provides a practical opportunity to practice democratic procedures, to develop leadership ability, and to work and play together.

The opportunities in 4-H under the guidance of volunteer leaders, uniquely and effectively supplement the training provided by the home, church, and school.

Four-H is an educational program of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Nebraska, conducted cooperatively with the U.S.D.A. and the county extension services.

4-H Club consists of five or more individuals, 9 through 18 years of age as of January 1, under the guidance of one or more adult volunteer leaders. Each club has its own officers, and plans its own program to meet interests and needs of members.

The 33,000-plus Nebraska 4-H club members invite all Nebraskans of 4-H club age to join in this challenging experience. Regardless of where you live — city, small town, or farm — you will find projects and activities to meet your interests and needs.

Partly Restored Telephone Service . . . WITH THE HELP OF DUKE THE DOG

Des Moines (AP) — Essential telephone services knocked out by collapse of the 6th Ave. bridge were restored Sunday — with the help of a dog named Duke.

Telephone company workers tied a line to the dog's collar, and fastened the other end to a cable.

Duke's master stood across the bridge and called him, and the dog carried the line across the weakened span. Workers then pulled the cable across.

Some Service

The small temporary cable enabled the telephone company to restore service to some parts of the area north of the river, but it probably will be Wednesday before the job can be completed. Two engineers arrived here Sunday from the firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff in Kansas City, a consulting engineering firm which studied and made a report on Des Moines bridges last March. They planned to inspect the collapsed span by boat.

A pole at each end was set in pit some eight feet deep, and the other poles were anchored to it.

Northwestern Bell brought in 20 splicers from Cedar Rapids, Mason City, Ames, Ottumwa and Marshalltown to help with the mammoth job of splicing together the thousands of wires inside the cables.

The Kansas City firm had reported after its inspection that the 6th Ave. bridge appeared to be in the best shape of four studied.

Blast, Blaze Level Fuel Oil Company

Norfolk, Va. (AP) — An explosion and fire ripped through a fuel oil distributing company here Sunday, destroying four 30,000-gallon storage tanks and five tank-type delivery trucks, and virtually leveling a half-block area in the northern part of the city.

Despite huge property damage, no injuries were reported.

The small one-story office building at the Allied Petroleum Co. burned to the ground, as did a nearby tavern, The Brown Derby. A teen-age boys' club — The 4 Seasons — was showered by burning oil and heavily damaged by fire.

Deputy Fire Chief Harry L. Drew said the mid-afternoon blast apparently was triggered by a fire of undetermined origin in a pump house near the tanks. He said three of the tanks contained fuel oil and the fourth contained gasoline.

When the first alarm was received about 3:10 p.m., firemen found two tank cars on a siding behind the burning tanks. It was first believed that these contained propane gas, but Drew said later he thought they held more fuel oil.

Fire-fighting personnel aided by men from the Norfolk Naval Air Station spread foam over the area and managed to keep the flames away from the cars.

When the blast went off, all available fire and emergency equipment was dispatched to the scene. A fog of greasy black smoke boiled over the area, and police evacuated a 50-home section in Roland Park nearby.

The smoke column towered hundreds of feet in the air, and was reported visible by a patrol boat halfway across Chesapeake Bay.

Drew said the blaze was under control about 4 p.m.

Allied Petroleum is owned by L. W. Walker Jr. There was no official estimate of damage.

Motorcyclist Hits Car, Suffers Leg, Head Injuries

John P. Cidlik, 18, of 5811 Sun Rise Road, was in satisfactory condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Sunday following a motorcycle-car accident at 17th and High St.

Police said Cidlik was riding a motorcycle south on 17th St. when he crashed into the rear of a car driven by Fred Norstadt, 39, of 1836 So. 58th St. Norstadt was southbound on 17th, and turning left onto High, when the accident occurred, police said.

Cidlik suffered a broken leg, head injuries and scrapes and bruises.

Freeman took the occasion to outline Agriculture's house of disunity.

In the presence of a strong representation of major news media, who seemed much more interested in excitement or trouble than the real success story of agriculture, Freeman went so far as to estimate that current disunity would not allow one commodity program to pass Congress if the vote was taken immediately.

Just because all farm groups don't agree with Freeman doesn't make agriculture any different than labor, industry, or business where two viewpoints quite often emerge in planning.

Major news media really came to life when Freeman released his "disunity in agriculture bit." That was the story that went out from Kannesa City to major population centers that day.

One writer for a major news service informed me he "didn't know anything about agriculture," but Freeman had really given him something for a story if there was so much disunity that it posed a farm crisis."

Freeman had a lot of information that was encouraging.

He said in this speech, "On the basis of facts, it is clear that American agriculture, far from being a problem, is the greatest success story of our times."

He explained how the farmer should enjoy a fair return the same as any other group and how, if we are going to keep our position as a world leader in agriculture, we need that farm income to keep people in the industry.

Freeman said that not one consumer group had objected to his estimate that for 3.6 cents a week per person the farmer could enjoy parity prices for domestic used wheat and rice.

Callan Fights To Keep Veterans Hospital Here

Washington (P)—Rep. Clair Callan, D-Neb., has carried the fight to keep open the Lincoln Veterans Administration Hospital to members of a panel named by President Johnson to review the VA's announced plans for closing some of its hospitals.

Callan announced Sunday that a "summary critique" was prepared and distributed to the group by his office. It includes in summary form, he said, "the justification for keeping the Lincoln Veterans Hospital open."

The VA has listed the Lincoln facility among those it plans to close. Nebraska senators also have opposed that proposal.

About 85 per cent of the Lincoln hospital budget is personnel costs, Callan said, and since the closing order provides that personnel will be given new jobs, actual savings would be only 15 per cent.

Callan said, that out of a possible VA score of 19 services, the Lincoln hospital has 17 available.

Fifteen of these, he continued, are provided within the hospital and by its staff. Other services are readily available that are not found in other VA hospitals, he declared.

These include hemodialysis (artificial kidney) and peritoneal dialysis, a research laboratory with full time personnel, and an animal laboratory, he pointed out.

Callan noted that the Lincoln hospital serves a population of some one million citizens and that veterans come from Nebraska, Western Iowa, Northwest Missouri and Kansas for services they cannot obtain elsewhere.

Callan said the Lincoln facility is sound structurally and some new equipment was installed last year. Most VA hospitals are not budgeted for full capacity and not staffed to operate at full capacity, his summary stated. He declared the Lincoln hospital has served more veterans more efficiently with each passing year.

Mrs. Ludwick, 67, Lifetime Lincoln Resident, Dies

Mrs. Jeannette Ludwick, 67, of 3211 So. 30th, widow of Dr. Paul G. Ludwick and a lifetime Lincoln resident, died Sunday.

Services will be at the Westminster Chapel, 2110 Sheridan, 11 a.m. Tuesday. The Rev. Dr. Robert Palmer will officiate.

She was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority at the University of Nebraska. She later became active in the University Club, PEO, Junior League, Lincoln Country Club, the YWCA Board of Directors and the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by two sons, Dr. Ralph W. Ludwick of Sterling, Colo., and Dr. Tom Ludwick of Lincoln.

Mrs. Ludwick was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Miller of Lincoln. Mr. Miller was a pioneer Lincoln real estate developer and the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by two sons, Dr. Ralph W. Ludwick of Sterling, Colo., and Dr. Tom Ludwick of Lincoln.

Arrested were Frank Mason, 57; Bennie Barone, 53; John Salanitro, 32; Jack P. La Ferla, 42, and Tony Miloni, 52, all of Omaha. They were picked up at three houses.

The five were taken to the Sarpy County Courthouse in Papillion late Saturday where Judge Orville Entenman set bond at $1,000 each on gambling charges, and $350 on the vagrancy charge against Miloni. All made bond and were released.

Among those involved in the raid was the Sarpy County Sheriff's Office, State Safety Patrol and the Bellevue Police Department.

Omaha In Fair Condition After Shooting Incident

Omaha (P)—Irving Bly, 27, Omaha, was in satisfactory condition Sunday night after being wounded in the chest earlier in the day during a scuffle with police.

Deputy County Attorney Mrs. Elizabeth Pittman said charges of assault with intent to kill, wound or maim would be filed Monday against Bly.

Police said they received a call about midnight Saturday that a man was shooting at his wife and threatening his family.

When police arrived, the man apparently began shooting at officers. Police returned the fire.

HOOVER . . . winds up music box-Christmas tree stand.

Cafe Operator Collects Multitude Of Odd Antiques

It's understandable with the array of merchandise crammed into the two storage areas.

And they can invite their feline friends for a feast of cafe scraps.

But the garage and basement are definitely off limits. That space is reserved for Hoover's priceless collection of antiques.

Delicate lamps 175 of them — along with typewriters, telephones, China ware and a multitude of other long-forgotten items from the past take up every available square inch of table space and then some.

"The cats love to get in here," said Hoover drawing a half-hidden white kitty out of a basket. "One of them knocked down a beautiful lamp once."

Services will be at the Westminster Chapel, 2110 Sheridan, 11 a.m. Tuesday. The Rev. Dr. Robert Palmer will officiate.

The local chapter of the American Red Cross said the national organization was asking additional contributions to its disaster relief fund because of heavy expenditures in the recent flood and tornado areas.

The American Red Cross said its disaster relief expenses have already totaled $10 million since last July. Only $8 million had been budgeted, and the other $2 million has "drawn heavily on the organization's disaster reserves with two traditionally heavy disaster months remaining in the fiscal year," the organization said.

The local chapter is receiving donations for the fund.

A new reprint of traffic regulations from the Lincoln Municipal Code is now available, according to Robert Holzinger, city traffic engineer.

Holzinger said that the reprint, first in several years, includes all additions and revisions and is up to date.

Copies may be obtained at the city clerk's office, Holzinger's office or at the Police Department.

Copies will be distributed free unless more than five are requested. Additional copies cost 15c each.

Hope For All Of Us

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

One good thing about all the new discoveries that are constantly being made is that they keep showing up shortcomings. Perhaps you have lived all your life in the shadow of some person who seemed to be the peak of perfection. He was a demon on the job, knew twice as much as he had to know, was never caught without an answer, was never late to work or an appointment.

That's the kind of thing that slowly tears away at one's confidence. The longer the shadow of success is cast over the average persons, the lower the latter sinks. The day comes when he really believes that he has nothing on the ball, that his competitor has the best of him coming and going. But take heart, that perfect fellow might not be so perfect, after all. Again, we are indebted to medicine, the field of psychiatry, for giving us new hope, a new lease on life. That perfect fellow might well be suffering from chronic anxiety.

This fascinating observation is passed along by the Associated Press from Dr. Herman A. Dickel, University of Oregon medical school psychiatry professor. These too perfect people, he explained, "keep themselves neat and clean, work extra hard and carefully, and are highly respected. And they worry all the time. They even worry about worrying."

Anxiety and fear, said Dr. Dickel, are the same and when the person bottles up his emotions but forces himself to keep going while holding back, he's a typical victim of chronic anxiety. They are like persons who "drive a car by stepping hard on the gas, and then put their foot on the brake to hold it down to the speed they wish to go," he said.

There is an observation of great satisfaction to all the sloppy, lazy and indifferent people of the world. Chances are you never realized that being late for work simply removed you from the clutches of psychiatry. Forget your necktie this morning? Think nothing of it, as it shows how well adjusted you are. Maybe you got caught in the middle of the afternoon by the boss, asleep at your desk. Laugh it off, friend, as it simply marks you as one of the gang. Perhaps you didn't finish up your work in the usual time today. But why worry about it when a finished job only marks you as an unstable character?

Bolivar's Influence

Last week the 75th anniversary of the Organization of American States came off with hardly an eyebrow raised anywhere. We are not very good at observing anniversaries which ought to be observed, but which do not often break into print.

The original concept of the OAS belongs to Simon Bolivar, a South American hero, statesman, general, whose leadership won independence from Spain for no less than six Latin American countries, including the one named in his honor—Bolivia.

Bolivar's memory is still deeply revered in South America, because he was not only gloriously effective, he was also honest with the people.

Bolivar dreamed a dream. It foresaw the New World comprising of free, independent, democratic nations bound together by a common set of laws to govern their foreign relations and to afford them the right of survival through a general and permanent Congress. The United States did not get the message too clearly and we

Humphrey A Hustler

The nation as a whole doesn't hear much from or about Vice President Hubert Humphrey but this isn't because the outgoing vice president has suddenly changed his character. It is nothing more than evidence of the fact that the vice presidency is, in many ways, a reflection of the presidency and when news is available from the horse's mouth, who wants to talk to the jockey?

But in and around Washington, it is quite a different story. Administration policies come from President Johnson which means that Humphrey doesn't get a great deal of national publicity. He is, however, an example of almost perpetual motion in Washington.

The Christian Science Monitor reports an average vice presidential day as follows: "Talked to the advertising council; talked to the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department; substituted at the last minute for the

Britain Sticks With U.S. Even If It Hurts

LONDON — The British have been our best friends and most loyal supporters in the Vietnamese imbroglio, though privately they have moments of unhappiness.

One of these came when Prime Minister Wilson telephoned his foreign minister, Michael Stewart, in Washington instructing him to register a firm protest against the use of riot gas in South Viet Nam.

Stewart did so—direct to President Johnson. But neither the American nor British public knew what happened afterward.

The persuasive President Johnson, at this point somewhat indignant, gave the British foreign minister such a sales talk on the fact that riot gas was used all over the world and was so much better than killing people that Stewart, in his speech before the National Press Club later that day, trimmed his sails. After putting his government on record against the use of gas, he added that Britain had confidence in the good judgment of the United States.

They are talking about the toothache of Toto, the elephant; about a silent pile driver recently invented; about the manner in which 70 members of the crew walked off the SS Carinthia in mid-river en route to New York; and about the fact that too many couples are getting married just before income tax payments are made, thereby swamping the registrars.

In London, far more important than the news from Viet Nam is news that parking in the West End will now be two shillings an hour as against sixpence an hour—quadrupled. That's what Londoners are thinking and talking about.

London is serene and peaceful. The last thing it wants is war over a country 7,000 miles away in Southeast Asia. London has spent about 19 years recovering from the effects of the last war. Moscow has worked day and night to rebuild—is still working. London followed a more leisurely pace, and only in recent years have the skeletons of bombed-out buildings and the rubble left by Hitler's bombers disappeared from along Bond and Regent streets.

Today, however, the daffodils are gay in Hyde Park; the crocuses are blue and orange on the terrace alongside Buckingham Palace. A trim coach bearing the royal arms of the Queen drives by, pulled by two spanking greys, curried and combed as if they had just come from Elizabeth Arden's.

Towering above Buckingham Palace, off to the left, is a skyscraper, its glass windows an easy mark for the next bombing raid—if there is one. No, London is not expecting war, and the people of England are not thinking about another war.

They are talking about the toothache of Toto, the elephant; about a silent pile driver recently invented; about the manner in which 70 members of the crew walked off the SS Carinthia in mid-river en route to New York; and about the fact that too many couples are getting married just before income tax payments are made, thereby swamping the registrars.

portant than the news from Viet Nam is news that parking in the West End will now be two shillings an hour as against sixpence an hour—quadrupled. That's what Londoners are thinking and talking about.

Feminine Wiles Do Help Career Women

NEW YORK — Men in business tend to assume that women in business have used every feminine wile available to get where they are.

Most businesswomen, on the other hand, bend over backwards (an uncomfortable posture) to hold their femininity in check. They try to pretend that there is absolutely no difference between themselves and the fellow in the next office, except that they wear curls and he wears greasy kid stuff.

"If I hadn't been a woman, I doubt we'd ever have got into the Kremlin. I did such corny female things, you wouldn't believe it."

That was in 1962. Miss Jarvis, who looks deceptively fragile, visited Russia to take a fling at getting permission to film the Kremlin, an assignment which had been flatly refused all the U.S. networks. She wrangled an invitation to a reception at the Vietnamese embassy, "dressed to the teeth, a and floated in on a pink chiffon cloud. I drifted right to Khrushchev and started my pitch. I talked with my eyes, my arms, my fingers and both feet. If I'd been a man, a guard would have rushed over and kicked me out—but you don't throw out a woman who's dressed to the teeth."

"Well, I talked and talked about what a wonderful thing it would be for the world to see inside this glorious complex, the Kremlin. Everybody stood around and gaped, waiting for the axe."

But at the end of her pitch, Khrushchev just said, "I think it's a wonderful idea. I'll arrange it for you."

THOMAS HARriot

Profiles In Science

You sometimes hear people muse aloud: "I wonder who discovered this vegetable was edible?" In some cases the right answer would be Thomas Harriot.

Harriot (1560-1621) was the leading astronomer and mathematician of much of the reign of Queen Elizabeth I. He independently invented the telescope, observed Halley's Comet and devised several of the common mathematical symbols still in use today.

But he is chiefly remembered in history as the man who brought back tobacco from the New World, the man who was indirectly responsible for the spread of the smoking habit among the modern peoples of Europe and America.

Harriot was the first man to describe, in English, many of the vegetables, fruits, other plants and animals found in the east of North America by English explorers.

His patron was the famous Sir Walter Raleigh. When Raleigh set out to colonize the eastern shore of North America, he asked Harriot, his private tutor in mathematics and a young Oxford teacher and student noted for his alert observations, to go along on an expedition.

In 1585 Harriot sailed in a Raleigh convoy commanded by Sir Richard Grenville. His duties were to make a study of the country, to be its geographer and mapmaker and to write out detailed botanical, zoological and mineralogical descriptions of what he found there.

In Virginia he saw many strange animals no Englishman had ever before seen, including the opossum and raccoon, the gray squirrel (now an economic pest in England, where Harriot first introduced it), the black bear, otter, martin, skunk and certain kinds of hares.

Among the plants, found with the help of friendly Indians, were chestnuts, walnuts, crab apples, grapes, sassafras, squash. And tobacco became popular in London.

Tobacco quickly became one of the most valuable crops in the world, which has remained to this day despite recent indications that it may be the cause, instead of the cure, of some diseases.

Whose Side?

Lincoln, Neb.

The Star's editorial page of April 13 contained two syndicated columns, both of which increased my tendency to believe less and less of what I read in The Star.

It may be noticed that the most severe storms since 1962 have been worldwide, some of them the worst ever recorded for their areas. Nothing happens suddenly.

When one sees a ring around the moon one night and the following night there is no moon, one can be sure of a storm. So after such an exotic display of an atmospheric nature as occurred in the spring of 1962, one could be sure that the world in general would be shaken.

Is mankind in general worthy of anything better? It would be interesting to know whether the atmospheric disturbance causes mankind to be so disturbed, or whether mankind's great disturbance is causing the great atmospheric disturbance.

In the first column, Drew Pearson tried to sell me on the idea that Khrushchev is a nice, respectable, retired government leader just like our own Eisenhower, living in happy, peaceful tranquility. Then he tried to justify the undemocratic manner in which Khrushchev was kicked out of office by rationalizing that "he couldn't have won an election, anyhow." As if an honest election were possible in totalitarian Russia!

I wonder how Mr. Eisenhower likes being compared to that Red ex-dictator? Please remember that our traditionally moderate Dwight Eisenhower became so sick of the "liberal left" last year that he publicly endorsed Barry Goldwater for president.

The second column by Marquis Childs gave a garbled, falsified version of some recent occurrences in California. The sole purpose of the article was to take another stab at the conservative leaders who are trying to rescue constitutional government in California and throw out the communists. Mr. Childs is continuing his campaign to make "left" a nice word in the American vocabulary, and "right" a bad word.

This is in regard to pushing off until June to decide whether to keep the Vets Hospital or not. You don't get all these committee members for nothing. And what little money it costs to maintain our Vets Hospital is nothing compared to what our country gives toward foreign aid.

Isn't it a shame for our people to hassle over a hospital for soldiers? What if our soldiers in the trenches had said, "Oh, I don't know whether it's worth lying in these trenches and fighting for what's back home and risking my life."

With those now arguing, it's just what little money they could save. With a soldier, it was his life. And by closing the hospitals now, it will cause the soldier and his family a great deal of hardship.

FATHER OF TWO VETERANS

Hastings, Neb.

Early in the spring of 1962, the roofs of houses, the upper part of a grain elevator and the top of high telephone poles were bathed in a crimson hue in this area. It was an atmospheric phenomenon, the likes of which one may see only once in a lifetime.

My wife wondered if it were a sign of the end of the world. It was not an occasion for laughter, rather, for serious meditation. I explained that it was an indication of very severe atmospheric disturbances, but no explanation was ever made of it.

State Insurance Director Frank Barrett has been quoted as saying: "We are fearful that the 1964 destructive storms demonstrate a trend toward increasingly frequent and severe storms

The 83rd Infantry Division, the famed Thunderbolt Division of World War II, is conducting the greatest manhunt in history. They are seeking some 28,000 of their former members. That is the number of men on their roster who have not been contacted since the end of the war. These men are scattered all over the nation.

At the close of the war, an 83rd Infantry Division Association was formed and an annual reunion has been held every year. This year the 19th annual conclave will be staged at Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, in August.

All former members of the old 83rd are urged to contact the national secretary, Harry Lockwood, 43 Oakland Avenue, Jersey City 6, New Jersey.

Hope For All Of Us

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

One good thing about all the new discoveries that are constantly being made is that they keep showing up shortcomings. Perhaps you have lived all your life in the shadow of some person who seemed to be the peak of perfection. He was a demon on the job, knew twice as much as he had to know, was never caught without an answer, was never late to work or an appointment.

That's the kind of thing that slowly tears away at one's confidence. The longer the shadow of success is cast over the average persons, the lower the latter sinks. The day comes when he really believes that he has nothing on the ball, that his competitor has the best of him coming and going. But take heart, that perfect fellow might not be so perfect, after all. Again, we are indebted to medicine, the field of psychiatry, for giving us new hope, a new lease on life. That perfect fellow might well be suffering from chronic anxiety.

This fascinating observation is passed along by the Associated Press from Dr. Herman A. Dickel, University of Oregon medical school psychiatry professor. These too perfect people, he explained, "keep themselves neat and clean, work extra hard and carefully, and are highly respected. And they worry all the time. They even worry about the weather."

Anxiety and fear, said Dr. Dickel, are the same and when the person bottles up his emotions but forces himself to keep going while holding back, he's a typical victim of chronic anxiety. They are like persons who "drive a car by stepping hard on the gas, and then put their foot on the brake to hold it down to the speed they wish to go," he said.

There is an observation of great satisfaction to all the sloppy, lazy and indifferent people of the world. Chances are you never realized that being late for work simply removed you from the clutches of psychiatry. Forget your necktie this morning? Think nothing of it, as it shows how well adjusted you are. Maybe you got caught in the middle of the afternoon by the boss, asleep at your desk. Laugh it off, friend, as it simply marks you as one of the gang. Perhaps you didn't finish up your work in the usual time today. But why worry about it when a finished job only marks you as an unstable character?

Bolivar's Influence

Last week the 75th anniversary of the Organization of American States came off with hardly an eyebrow raised anywhere. We are not very good at observing anniversaries which ought to be observed, but which do not often break into print.

The original concept of the OAS belongs to Simon Bolivar, a South American hero, statesman, general whose leadership won independence from Spain for no less than six Latin American countries, including the one named in his honor—Bolivia.

Bolivar's memory is still deeply revered in South America, because he was not only gloriously effective, he was also honest with the people.

Bolivar dreamed a dream. It foresaw the New World comprising of free, independent, democratic nations bound together by a common set of laws to govern their foreign relations and to afford them the right of survival through a general and permanent Congress. The United States did not get the message too clearly and we

The nation as a whole doesn't hear much from or about Vice President Hubert Humphrey but this isn't because the outgoing vice president has suddenly changed his character. It is nothing more than evidence of the fact that the vice presidency is, in many ways, a reflection of the presidency and when news is available from the horse's mouth, who wants to talk to the jockey?

But in and around Washington, it is quite a different story. Administration policies come from President Johnson which means that Humphrey doesn't get a great deal of national publicity. He is, however, an example of almost perpetual motion in Washington.

The Christian Science Monitor reports an average vice presidential day as follows: "Talked to the advertising council, talked to the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department; substituted at the last minute for the absent secretary of agriculture, Orville L. Freeman, before a farm group on rural poverty; opened the 'Cherry Blossom Festival.'

"Met with the congressional leadership at the White House; met representatives of the Ford Foundation; announced appointments to the interparliamentary union; met with the Space Council; had a talk with David E. Bell of the Agency for International Development and key senators on foreign aid; and went to a party for the man who has written a Humphrey biography."

The news item stated further: "That evening, Mr. Humphrey said he had had a couple other engagements, but couldn't remember them." And Humphrey loves every minute of the mad race. To those who might aspire to high public office, they had better love hard work, too, as that is the formula for success in that field.

Progress In Viet Nam

How are things in Viet Nam? We don't know for sure. But we do know that there have been changes, perhaps for the better.

Lincoln's new Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery is architecturally, artistically and symbolically a link with the past and a cultural stimulant for the future. The collections housed in the marbled gallery help art students learn how to profit from the past and the present and how to explore the future for themselves. And they offer an exciting experience for the many Nebraskans who have simply a lively interest in art. Just as Lincoln provides cultural oppor-

Weary Twister Victims Thank God On Easter

Russiaville, Ind. (AP)—The weary worshipers passed through a mud-splattered and nearly hingeless white door, its handle hastily tacked up splinter of wood.

They came to give thanks on Easter Sunday that "He moved among us, not in destruction, but in preservation of lives."

Many of the 150 Methodists wore slacks, tennis shoes and parkas. Most were refugees of the disastrous Palm Sunday tornadoes which leveled this central Indiana farming community of 1,200, sparing all but three lives.

Their white-trimmed brick church, rebuilt 17 years ago after a fire, was the only one of four left standing.

Welcome

Members of the Christian and Baptist denominations, many who rode out the tornado in the basement or under pews of their churches a week ago, were welcomed for separate services.

The Friends congregation used a church in nearby Lynn.

The white columns and portico of the Methodist Church were missing. A single lily and two begonias plants adorned the altar.

In the foyer, a well-dressed woman with a dust mop in hand greeted victims such as Mrs. James Scott, who said she came to worship because "I felt like I had to. The Lord saved us. I felt I should thank Him."

A plywood roof, nailed up just three days ago by 20 Purdue University students who cut class, showed through gaping holes in the sanctuary ceiling.

The congregation sat in water-stained pews and rejoiced that "Thou hast preserved for us the place where we worship."

Easter Noted Throughout World

By The Associated Press

From a windswept hill in Korea to a mountain top in Georgia, and to a huge square in the Vatican City, Christians Sunday celebrated the most joyous day of their calendar.

The fires have burned annually since 1847 when John O. Meusebach traveled into Indian camping ground to negotiate a treaty.

President Johnson arranged to attend services in Blanco, Texas.

In New York, thousands donned their finest and joined the city's annual Easter parade up Fifth Avenue under sunny skies.

Demonstrators also used the Easter weekend for protests against U.S. policies in Viet Nam. Marches were staged in Washington, San Francisco, Chicago and Salt Lake City.

In Washington, thousands of students massed in one of the largest demonstrations ever to take place around the White House. The group called itself Students for a Democratic Society.

Jail Not 'In' With Students

Daytona Beach, Fla. (UPI)—Going to jail apparently isn't "in" anymore among the thousands of beer-drinking collegians who hold their "annual convention" on the white sands of Daytona Beach.

About 800 have been arrested for various offenses since the middle of March, when the vanguard of an estimated 60,000 began arriving here.

But Police Chief Oscar Folsom says the sun-burned students are better behaved this year than in any year since the invading hordes switched allegiance to Daytona Beach after a police crackdown at Fort Lauderdale.

The mass of youngsters lining the city's 20 miles of glistening beach isn't as thick as usual due to the late arrival of the Easter holiday, which stretched college semester breaks out over several weeks.

35,000 Hit The Beach

Police estimated 35,000 had hit the beach by Good Friday, with the 60,000 figure expected Sunday as students arrive from Fort Lauderdale and other spots.

There's no shortage of customers for the beer joints and hamburger stands, however.

Chief lifeguard Ray Hutton said the beach looked like "a mile-long lump of humanity under a blanket" early Sunday as the bright morning sun burned into the eyes of groggy students trying to sleep in the sand.

Folsom said his men, who have been working 12-and-16-hour shifts for the past 10 days, were directing traffic on the beach at 3 a.m. "like it was noon on Sunday."

The city sponsors dances in a beach front bandshell and the junior chamber of commerce threw a wingding featuring the Beach Boys at a ballpark.

They Learned

Daytona officials learned from the Fort Lauderdale riots that trouble starts when collegians looking for excitement have nothing to do.

Last year, 2,100 were arrested and the city collected an estimated $50,000 in fines and forfeitures.

Messages

Even girls have taken to painting messages on the seat of their bikini swim suits, said Hutton.

Chief Folsom's officers, bolstered by some 300 from the nearby communities of Deland, Holly Hill, and Port Orange and the highway patrol, are on the lookout for trouble.

"We're about a foot deep in beer cans right now," said Hutton. "And at 7 a.m. it was bumper-to-bumper traffic as far as the eye could see."

Hutton said the collegians' latest wrinkle in beachwear is sweat shirts with obscenities painted on them. He said police arrested eight youths Saturday for refusing to remove such shirts.

Weary Twister Victims Thank God On Easter

Russaville Ind.—The weary worshippers passed through a mud-splattered doorway, its handle hastily tacked up splinter of wood.

They came to give thanks on Easter Sunday that "He moved among us, not in destruction, but in preservation of lives."

Many of the 150 Methodists were slacks, tennis shoes and parkas. Most were refugees from the disastrous Palm Sunday tornadoes which leveled this central Indiana farming community of 1,200, sparing all but three lives.

Their white-trimmed brick church, rebuilt 17 years ago after a fire was the only one of four left standing.

Welcome

Members of the Christian and Baptist denominations, many who rode out the tornado in the basement or under pews of their churches a week ago, were welcomed for separate services.

The Friends congregation used a church in nearby Lynn.

The white columns and portico of the Methodist Church were missing. A single potted lily and two begonia plants adorned the altar.

In the foyer, a well-dressed woman with a dust mop in hand greeted victims such as Mrs. James Scott, who said she came to worship because "I felt like I had to. The Lord saved us. I felt I should thank Him."

A plywood roof, nailed up just three days ago by 20 Purdue University students who cut class, showed through gaping holes in the sanctuary ceiling.

The congregation sat in water-stained pews and rejoiced that "Thou hast preserved for us the place where we worship."

Easter Noted Throughout World

By The Associated Press

Christ bore nearly 2,000 years ago so "He could give us everlasting life. Had there been no Easter, there would be no eternal hope."

He spoke of the cross which Christ bore nearly 2,000 years ago so "He could give us everlasting life. Had there been no Easter, there would be no eternal hope."

"Why did God send the tornado? God didn't send it. Sometimes He permits things. But He is not angry."

The Rev. Mr. Baxter compared the victims with Job and reminded them of God's contract with the devil in which He said "you can do everything to Job but kill him."

Same Spirit

"We must have the same spirit as Job, who said, 'Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him.'"

The offering plates were filled.

After the services, the Rev. Mr. Baxter commented, "I wanted to cry. Where do words come from? We can hardly be thankful for anything but life."

Knelt Together

Far away, on White Cross Hill in Korea, 200 servicemen and 50 Korean orphans knelt together in the wind and cold to offer prayers for eternal peace.

They came by jeeps and trucks for the services before an eight-foot wooden cross. The hilltop is only 5,000 yards from allied and communist outposts in the demilitarized zone.

Sixteen miles from Atlanta, Ga., worshippers climbed to the summit of picturesque Stone Mountain for sunrise services.

At Fredericksburg, Tex., 15 miles from President Johnson's ranch—Easter fires burned for the 119th consecutive year while several thousand persons watched a pageant from wooden grandstands.

The fires have burned annually since 1847 when John O' Meusebach traveled into Georgia, and to a huge square in the Vatican City. Christians Sunday celebrated the most joyous day of their calendar.

In churches and at open-air observances throughout the world, the ever-hopeful message of the resurrection of Christ was told again.

Pope Paul VI delivered his Easter message before almost a half million persons gathered in St. Peter's Square in the Vatican City.

In a plea clearly aimed at the conflict in Viet Nam, he urged a negotiated end to every war and guerrilla operation."

'Balance Of Danger' Seen Shifting From Europe To Asia

London (P)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson suggested Sunday "We should not be too quickly discouraged or too defeatist" about first communist reactions tending to discount President Johnson's overtures for peace in Viet Nam.

"We have very warmly welcomed the speech of the President on the outlook in Southeast Asia," Wilson said. "It showed a clear and unequivocal willingness to enter into discussions without preconditions. We would strongly support him in that, as we have in other areas."

The prime minister, in an interview with the Associated Press, said Britain and the United States must tighten their alliance to check rising dangers to peace from Suez to the China Sea.

The interview took place last Tuesday just before Wilson went to Washington to see the President. The transcript was released Sunday after Wilson's office checked it, following the prime minister's return to Britain.

Wilson said "the balance of danger" is spreading more and more from Europe to Asia.

Closer Talks

As this process goes on, the British leader continued, London and Washington will find it necessary "to talk closely together about any joint approach that will be needed in peacekeeping operations and in giving assurances to our allies and friends in that area."

Are Allies

"We have, of course, a very close alliance in NATO. We are allies in SEATO.

"I believe that as the balance of danger spreads more and more from Europe to Asia we shall find it necessary to talk closely together about any joint approach that will be needed in peacekeeping operations and in giving assurances to our allies and friends in that area."

"We (British) intend to maintain a role east of Suez where we are well-fitted to make a contribution to keeping the peace and we shall want to discuss how far we can carry out this role, not only with the United States but also with our Commonwealth partners in Australia and New Zealand."

Anzus Treaty

Australia and New Zealand are militarily tied to the United States in the Anzus Treaty. The British, with their extensive military base facilities and economic interests in the region, never relished being left out of Anzus.

As a model of the ever-tightening cooperation he envisages with Washington, Wilson cited Britain's strong support of President Johnson's policies in Viet Nam specifically, and in Southeast Asia generally.

"In any (Viet Nam) conference there must be a recognition that there is no easy way out," he said. "And we must find a solution that will really guarantee peace and stability in the area."

Ranged Widely

Puffing his pipe in the 18th-century Cabinet Room at 10 Downing St., Wilson ranged relaxedly over world issues.

Among the points he made in answer to questions:

—There is today an urgent need to reform international monetary arrangements. Wilson has already initiated talks

Sen. O. D. Johnston, Rights, Aid Foe, Dies

Columbia, S.C. (P)—Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., an outspoken opponent of civil rights legislation and foreign aid, but a strong supporter for most of other New Deal, Fair Deal and New Frontier policies of national Democratic administrations, died early Sunday of pneumonia which developed after an abdominal operation. He was 68.

Death came to South Carolina's senior senator at 4:21 a.m. Easter Sunday in Providence Hospital.

Sen. Johnston, twice elected governor of South Carolina and chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, had developed pneumonia last Wednesday, six days after undergoing his second major abdominal operation in less than three months.

'Went To Sleep'

"The senator went to sleep at 4:21," his brother, Will C. Johnston, announced in a choked voice to those waiting in the hospital corridor.

At the senator's bedside when he died were his wife, his two daughters and his two brothers. Several friends had waited in the hospital corridor since it became known early in the night that death was considered almost inevitable.

"I didn't think he could hold on as long as he did," said one of the two doctors who maintained an around-the-clock vigil.

'A Fighter'

"But he was a fighter," the doctor added. "I guess that was the story of his whole life."

And it was the story of his life.

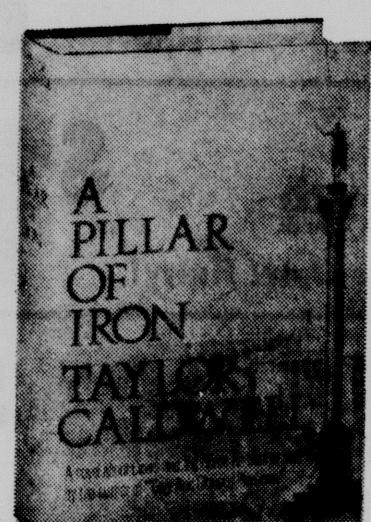

From a tenant farm in Anderson County and the textile mills of Spartanburg, the six-foot, three-inch country boy rose to a 45-year political career that led to the governor's mansion and then to Capitol Hill in Washington.

about first reactions to the President's proposals."

Check Dangers

The prime minister, in an interview with the Associated Press, said Britain and the United States must tighten their alliance to check rising dangers to peace from Suez to the China Sea.

The interview took place last Tuesday just before Wilson went to Washington to see the President. The transcript was released Sunday after Wilson's office checked it, following the prime minister's return to Britain.

Wilson said "the balance of danger" is spreading more and more from Europe to Asia.

Closer Talks

As this process goes on, the British leader continued, London and Washington will find it necessary "to talk closely together about any joint approach" needed to keep the peace and assure their friends east of Suez.

Wilson was asked if he foresees the development of a full-scale British-American military alliance in the area. Forces of both countries are fighting separate, but in some ways strategically interlocking, campaigns in defense of Viet Nam and Malaysia.

Without answering directly in the affirmative Wilson said:

Are Allies

"We have, of course, a very close alliance in NATO. We are allies in SEATO."

"I believe that as the balance of danger spreads more and more from Europe to Asia we shall find it necessary to talk closely together about any joint approach that will be needed in peacekeeping operations and in giving assurances to our allies and friends in that area."

Anzus Treaty

Australia and New Zealand are militarily tied to the United States in the Anzus Treaty. The British, with their extensive military base facilities and economic interests in the region, never relished being left out of Anzus.

As a model of the ever-tightening cooperation he envisages with Washington, Wilson cited Britain's strong support of President Johnson's policies in Viet Nam specifically, and in Southeast Asia generally.

"In any (Viet Nam) conference there must be a recognition that there is no easy way out," he said. "And we must find a solution that will really guarantee peace and stability in the area."

Ranged Widely

Puffing his pipe in the 18th-century Cabinet Room at 10 Downing St., Wilson ranged relaxedly over world issues.

Among the points he made in answer to questions:

"There is today an urgent need to reform international monetary arrangements. Wilson has already initiated talks

Sen. O. D. Johnston, Rights, Aid Foe, Dies

Columbia, S.C. (AP)—Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., an outspoken opponent of civil rights legislation and foreign aid, but a strong supporter of most other New Deal, Fair Deal and New Frontier policies of national Democratic administrations, died early Sunday of pneumonia which developed after an abdominal operation. He was 68.

Death came to South Carolina's senior senator at 4:21 a.m. Easter Sunday in Providence Hospital.

Sen. Johnston, twice elected governor of South Carolina and chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, had developed pneumonia last Wednesday, six days after undergoing his second major abdominal operation in less than three months.

'Went To Sleep'

"The senator went to sleep at 4:21," his brother, Will C. Johnston, announced in a choked voice to those waiting in the hospital corridor.

At the senator's bedside when he died were his wife, his two daughters and his two brothers. Several friends had waited in the hospital corridor since it became known early in the night that death was considered almost inevitable. "I didn't think he could hold on as long as he did," said one of the two doctors who maintained an around-the-clock vigil.

'A Fighter'

"But he was a fighter," the doctor added. "I guess that was the story of his whole life."

And it was the story of his life.

From a tenant farm in Anderson County and the textile mills of Spartanburg, the six-foot, three-inch country boy rose to a 45-year political career that led to the governor's mansion and then to Capitol Hill in Washington.

The body will lie in state in the rotunda of the State Capitol in Columbia from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday with a brief memorial service at 5:30 p.m. Funeral services will be Tuesday at Spartanburg and interment will be in Barkers Creek Baptist cemetery near Honea Path afterwards.

The funeral, at the Southside Baptist Church in Spartanburg, will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. William H. Clapp, assisted by Dr. John Hush of Charleston; the Rev. Thomas Painter, pastor of the Kensington Baptist Church at Kensington, Md., to which the senator belonged; Dr. Frederick B. Harris, chaplain of the U.S. Senate, and Dr. J. E. Rouse, president of Anderson College.

Active pallbearers will be seven of Sen. Johnston's nephews.

A Pillar of Iron

This is Taylor Caldwell's most outstanding novel to date. A story of the decadence that destroyed the Roman Empire.

Depicted is Caesar in his many moods. Catiline, handsome and degenerate, who taunts Cicero and marries the love of Cicero's life. Cicero, born of a middle-class family, establishes a friendship with Caesar, a friendship that is to save his life many times.

This is Cicero's story, an idealist determined to preserve Republicanism in a world of ambitious men. This is Rome in its greatest glory by a master novelist.

CHURCH ceremonies on Sunday

Arrangements of Easter lilies bowed with yellow satin appointed the chancel of Grace Lutheran Church Sunday afternoon, April 18, for the marriage of Miss Ligia Balodis, daughter of Mrs. Olga Balodis and Mikelis Balodis, to Terhan Ray Adair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Adair. The service was solemnized at 2 o'clock by the Rev. H. Jesiers.

Wearing slim frocks in pale yellow and carrying cascades of yellow carnations were Miss Anna Temmers, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Nancy Adair, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Paulette Ikerd.

John Traudt served Mr. Adair as best man, and seating the guests were John Dockery, Highwood, Ill.; Jim Kennedy, Ralph Merriman and Jim Merriman.

White brocaded satin patterned in a rose motif was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. The sheath lines of the gown were emphasized by a high, rolled collar and cuffed, bracelet-length sleeves, and a wide panel of the brocade formed a detachable court train extending to cotillion length. Her bouffant veil was held by a cluster of satin petals, and she carried a single white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Adair, both former students at the University of Nebraska, will make their home at 2315 So. 14th.

Mrs. Mark Hedges entertained the members of the Sharon Extension Club at her home Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Orval Wissink as assisting hostess.

AUGUST wedding is planned

Announcement is made this morning by Mrs. Viola Kuper Dyche of Kansas City, Mo., formerly of Lincoln of the engagement of her daughter, Lorna Carole, to William J. Kelly, son of Mrs. William Kelly of Flint, Mich., and the late Mr. Kelly.

An August wedding is planned.

Miss Dyche is a graduate of Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, Mo., and a member of Alpha Sigma Tau, and of Delta Psi Kappa, physical education honorary.

TALK

around the town

There is some interesting news from Colorado this morning, and it involves Mr. and Mrs. John V. Whitten and their children, John, Kathy, Mary and Elizabeth of Greeley, Colo. We should say—formerly of Greeley—because the news is a change of address.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitten and their family are moving to Colorado Springs, where Mr. Whitten, we hear, took over his banking duties several weeks ago. His family, however, will not join him until the end of school in June.

We have news of a bride-elect this morning, also. The parties for Miss Joan Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John A. Brown, III, are beginning this week. Miss Brown has a June date for her marriage to Philip C. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl Nelson.

The first of the courtesies will be on Tuesday morning when Mrs. Nelson will be a hostess. Mrs. Nelson has invited 32 of her friends to meet Miss Brown at a 10 o'clock coffee at her home.

And on Friday Miss Brown will again be an honoree when Mrs. W. L. Ferguson and Mrs. Dan Jett entertain at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Ferguson. Twenty-five guests have been invited, and the bride-elect will be presented with a one-gift address.

Checked the calendar for the current week and found that next weekend is dotted with events. On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lilly will preside at dinner at Hotel Cornhusker in prenuptial courtesy to their daughter, Miss Katherine Lilly, and Dale L. Gibbs whose marriage will be solemnized on Saturday, April 24.

Dining and dancing is on the Saturday night agenda for the members of the Safari Dancing Club—and the Allons Y Club—Both parties are at Hotel Lincoln.

COUNTRY CLUB TERRACE

Mrs. Florence I. Leinberger has new tenants in her duplex on Pace Boulevard. Just moved in on Saturday, April 10, were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Tenhuzen and their two-weeks old baby, who formerly lived at Fremont.

All sort of good things are bound to come about when a new bride sets up a new kitchen. Judy Hensley will become the bride of Robert Schultz on August 14—and she already has many of the items for the new kitchen.

Miss Hensley was honored at a kitchen shower on April 9. Twenty-eight guests attended the luncheon event at the home of Mrs. Stanley Schrier, 2401 Woods Blvd. Mrs. Schrier's children, Jeffrey, Jill, and Julie, helped serve lunch.

Among the guests were the bride's mother, Mrs. Alvin Hensley, and her sister, Miss Pat Hensley. Also present were Mrs. Fred H. Schultz, Jr., mother of the bridegroom; and his sister, Miss Barrie Schultz.

tion enough? Please clear up this matter.

IOWAN

DEAR IOWAN: A personal invitation to one's mother would seem more appropriate than an engaged one. Either your mother forgot that you had invited her personally, or she is looking for a reason to be angry with you. Something is wrong here. I would guess that the relationship between you and your mother was rather shaky to begin with.

DEAR ABBY: A lady, whom I seldom see, lives in the same apartment house that I do. She came to my apartment one evening to visit with me. I was sewing. After she left I missed my gold thimble. I thought I had mislaid it, and used another thimble. Last evening this lady invited me to her apartment. I noticed a gold thimble on the sewing table near my chair. I casually picked it up and examined it, and saw my initials on it. I wouldn't openly accuse her of taking it, nor would I make a big fuss about it, but I would like to know how I can get my thimble back. Please advise me.

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Call your neighbor and tell her you think she may have taken home your gold thimble by mistake. If she denies it, buy yourself another thimble and consider the first one gone for good. P.S. If your light-fingered friend ever visits again, lock up everything she can lift.

BRIDES

at weekend services

Miss Linda Lou Wiechert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wiechert, became the bride of Edward Allen Stich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stich of Dorchester, at an afternoon service on Easter Sunday, April 18. The ceremony was solemnized at 4 o'clock by the Rev. David Wallschlaeger at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, and Mrs. Jean Becker, organist, played the wedding music. The vocalist was Miss Roselee Pleis.

Frocked in pastel blue silk were Miss Jane Wiechert, who was her sister's maid of honor; and the bridesmaids, Miss Susan Wiechert, also a sister of the bride, and Mrs. Jerry Werner, Milford, sister of the bridegroom. Each carried a single, long-stemmed pink rose.

Bernard Stich of Chicago, served his brother as best man, and the ushers were Larry Jiskra and Richard Slama, Dorchester; Jim Wiechert, brother of the bride, and Daryl Javorsky.

The bride chose traditional white satin for her wedding gown. Imported lace edged the shell neckline of the long-sleeved bodice, and was repeated in the trim of the skirt, which was caught into the fullness of unpressed pleats and completed by a panel train of the satin. A tiny pillbox cap of satin held her illusion veil, and she carried a white prayer book marked with a single white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Stich will reside at 632 So. 49th. Both are students at the University of Nebraska.

At a 4 o'clock ceremony solemnized Sunday, April 18, Miss Laura Margaret Shaner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Shaner, became the bride of G. Neale Shaner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn C. Shaner of North Hollywood, Calif. The lines of the service were ready by the Rev. Lawrence Stanton at First-Plymouth Church.

Empire frocks fashioned with forest green chiffon basques and slim skirts of crepe in the champagne tone were worn by the attendants, Mrs. Jerry Daniels, Ankeny, Iowa, as the matron of honor; and the bridesmaids, Miss Janet Shaner and Mrs. J. D. Schafer, Jr., of Muscatine, Iowa, both sisters of the bride; and Miss Susan Shaner, Santa Barbara, Calif., sister of the bridegroom.

Carl Shaner of Stanford, Calif., served his brother as best man, and the ushers were Larry Jiskra and Richard Slama, Dorchester; Jim Wiechert, brother of the bride, and Daryl Javorsky.

The bride appeared in a gown of white peau de soie. The long-sleeved basque was designed with a shoulder-wide shell neckline, and the skirt, caught into back fullness, continued into a cathedral train. A coronet of crystal beading held to the head her bouffant veil of illusion, and she carried a crescent of white carnations and pink roses.

The couple will reside in Lincoln, where the bridegroom is a student at the University of Nebraska College of Law. Mrs. Shaner is a graduate of the university.

This hand appears in Play Bridge with Reese and is chiefly notable because it contains a highly unusual play.

Let's say you're declarer at Six Spades and that West leads the three of spades. When you play the seven from dummy, East follows with the two. The problem is how to play the hand so as to give yourself the best chance of making the contract.

Of course you don't see the opponents' cards, but even so, the best line of play can be figured out.

There are two methods of play that stand out. One is to take a diamond finesse at once. If it succeeds, the contract is made by then ruffing a diamond or two in dummy.

If it loses, there is the probability of a trump return, in which case it would become impossible to ruff two diamonds in dummy. There would still be other chances of making the contract, but they would not be particularly promising.

The other method of play is to play a second round of trumps, followed by three rounds of hearts. This method wins if the spades are divided 2-2, and also wins if the spades are divided 3-1 and the player with the three trumps has three or more hearts.

Both methods of play would fail in the actual hand, even though they would succeed most of the time.

But the very best method of play is not readily apparent. Declarer gives himself the maximum chance of making the contract if he plays a club from dummy at trick two and discards one of his high hearts on it!

Assure that East takes the club and returns a diamond. South wins it with the ace, plays a high trump, and then cashes two high hearts. He now crosses to the ten of spades and discards the Q-9-4 of diamonds on the J-10-7 of hearts.

The club play is very sensational, but it is also very sound. All you have to do is think of it.

At a 4 o'clock ceremony solemnized Sunday, April 18, Miss Laura Margaret Shaner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Shaner, became the bride of G. Neale Shaner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn C. Shaner of North Hollywood, Calif. The lines of the service were ready by the Rev. Lawrence Stanton at First-Plymouth Church.

Empire frocks fashioned with forest green chiffon basques and slim skirts of crepe in the champagne tone were worn by the attendants, Mrs. Jerry Daniels, Ankeny, Iowa, as the matron of honor; and the bridesmaids, Miss Janet Shaner and Mrs. J. D. Schafer, Jr., of Muscatine, Iowa, both sisters of the bride; and Miss Susan Shaner, Santa Barbara, Calif., sister of the bridegroom.

Carl Shaner of Stanford, Calif., served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were Carl Novak, Wilber; Randolph Shaner, brother of the bride, and Jean Henrichs, Jr.

The bride appeared in a gown of white peau de soie. The long-sleeved basque was designed with a shoulder-wide shell neckline, and the skirt, caught into back fullness, continued into a cathedral train. A coronet of crystal beading held to the head her bouffant veil of illusion, and she carried a crescent of white carnations and pink roses.

The couple will reside in Lincoln, where the bridegroom is a student at the University of Nebraska College of Law. Mrs. Shaner is a graduate of the university.

around the town

There is some interesting news from Colorado this morning, and it involves Mr. and Mrs. John V. Whitten and their children, John, Kathy, Mary and Elizabeth of Greeley, Colo. We should say—formerly of Greeley—because the news is a change of address.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitten and their family are moving to Colorado Springs, where Mr. Whitten, we hear, took over his banking duties several weeks ago. His family, however, will not join him until the end of school in June.

We have news of a bride-elect this morning, also. The parties for Miss Joan Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John A. Brown, III, are beginning this week. Miss Brown has a June date for her marriage to Philip C. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl Nelson.

The first of the courtesies will be on Tuesday morning when Mrs. Nelson will be a hostess. Mrs. Nelson has invited 32 of her friends to meet Miss Brown at a 10 o'clock coffee at her home.

And on Friday Miss Brown will again be an honoree when Mrs. W. L. Ferguson and Mrs. Dan Jett entertain at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Ferguson. Twenty-five guests have been invited, and the bride-elect will be presented with a one-gift shower.

Checked the calendar for the current week and found that next weekend is dotted with events. On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lilly will preside at dinner at Hotel Cornhusker in prenuptial courtesy to their daughter, Miss Katherine Lilly, and Dale L. Gibbs whose marriage will be solemnized on Saturday, April 24.

Dining and dancing is on the Saturday night agenda for the members of the Safari Dancing Club—and the Allons Y Club—Both parties are at Hotel Lincoln.

tion enough? Please clear up this matter.

IOWAN

DEAR IOWAN: A personal invitation to one's mother would seem more appropriate than an engraved one. Either your mother forgot that you had invited her personally, or she is looking for a reason to be angry with you. Something is wrong here. I would guess that the relationship between you and your mother was rather shaky to begin with.

DEAR ABY: A lady, whom I seldom see, lives in the same apartment house that I do. She came to my apartment one evening to visit with me. I was sewing. After she left I missed my gold thimble. I thought I had mislaid it, and used another thimble. Last evening this lady invited me to her apartment. I noticed a gold thimble on the sewing table near my chair. I casually picked it up and examined it, and saw my initials on it. I wouldn't openly accuse her of taking it, nor would I make a big fuss about it, but I would like to know how I can get my thimble back. Please advise me.

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Call your neighbor and tell her you think she may have taken home your gold thimble by mistake. If she denies it, buy yourself another thimble and consider the first one gone for good. P.S. If your light-fingered friend ever visits again, lock up everything she can lift.

COUNTRY CLUB TERRACE

Mrs. Florence I. Leinberger has new tenants in her duplex on Pace Boulevard. Just moved in on Saturday, Apr. 10, were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Tenhuzen and their two-weeks old baby, who formerly lived at Fremont.

All sort of good things are bound to come about when a new bride sets up a new kitchen. Judy Hensley will become the bride of Robert Schultz on August 14—and she already has many of the items for the new kitchen.

Miss Hensley was honored at a kitchen shower on April 9. Twenty-eight guests attended the luncheon event at the home of Mrs. Stanley Schrier, 2401 Woods Blvd. Mrs. Schrier's children, Jeffrey, Jill, and Julie, helped serve lunch.

Among the guests were the bride's mother, Mrs. Alvin Hensley, and her sister, Miss Pat Hensley. Also present were Mrs. Fred H. Schultz, Jr., mother of the bridegroom; and his sister, Miss Barrie Schultz.

BRIDES

at weekend services

Miss Linda Lou Wiechert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wiechert, became the bride of Edward Allen Stich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stich of Dorchester, at an afternoon service on Easter Sunday, April 18. The ceremony was solemnized at 4 o'clock by the Rev. David Wallischlaeger at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, and Mrs. Jean Becker, organist, played the wedding music. The vocalist was Miss Roselee Pleis.

Frocked in pastel blue silk were Miss Jane Wiechert, who was her sister's maid of honor; and the bridesmaids, Miss Susan Wiechert, also a sister of the bride, and Mrs. Jerry Werner, Milford, sister of the bridegroom. Each carried a single, long-stemmed pink rose.

Bernard Stich of Chicago, served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were Carl Novak, Wilber; Randolph Shaner, brother of the bride, and Daryl Javorsky.

The bride chose traditional white satin for her wedding gown. Imported lace edged the shell neckline of the long-sleeved bodice, and was repeated in the trim of the skirt, which was caught into back fullness of unpressed pleats and completed by a panel train of the satin. A tiny pillbox cap of satin held her illusion veil, and she carried a white prayer book marked with a single white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Stich will reside at 632 So. 49th. Both are students at the University of Nebraska.

Baseball Still Favorite Sport, But Football Gaining Rapidly

By LOUIS HARRIS

Baseball is still America's favorite sport. But it's hard-pressed by football which has already passed baseball as the number one spectator sport for young men. The trouble, nearly half the nation's sports fans report, is that baseball has become too dull and too much a business.

Of the nation's adult public, 62% say they follow sporting events with some interest. In just completed survey of a cross section of those men and women who are sports fans, these questions were asked:

"When these fans were asked if they think baseball is becoming too much of a business, too little of a sport, 41% said it is too much a business.

In addition, they complained that games are too long, too slow and boring, that teams are poorly matched and display poor sportsmanship and that umpires make bad decisions.

Those who said they like baseball mentioned as their reasons: clean, moral sport, top professional performances; exciting action; close games.

Enersen noted that lack of better employment for minority group people in Lincoln can contribute to a continuing pattern of discrimination which is bad for the community.

At the meeting local manpower and job training experts will explain federal and state programs that are available locally.

Training, Job Clinic Slated For Tuesday

A "Training and Job Opportunity Clinic," sponsored by the Mayor's Council on Human Relations, will be held at 7:30 Tuesday evening at Lincoln High School. Lawrence Enersen, chairman of the council, announced.

Purpose of the clinic is to acquaint unemployed persons, and those who want to train for higher incomes, with job opportunities that are available to them locally.

At the meeting local manpower and job training experts will explain federal and state programs that are available locally.

Any person is welcome to attend the meeting, Enersen said.

"I like to see my team come from behind, see them win."

The views of the fans who criticized baseball resembled those of a material control clerk in Buffalo. He said, "It's a cold-blooded business. I don't like the way they can trade a player. He should have some say in it." In Shirley, Mass., a 34-year-old clerk said, "They're making it too much business now, with the owners interested in investments; the fan is being forgotten. Make it a sport again."

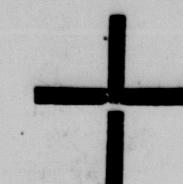

By way of reinforcing their complaints that baseball is becoming too much a business, the fans passed over many public figures mentioned as the new commissioner of baseball and chose Joe Cronin, a former major league star and the present president of the American League, as their favorite. The fans were asked:

"Here is a list of men who have been mentioned for the job of baseball commissioner. If you had to pick one, who would be your first choice to be baseball commissioner?"

Winds Hurt Prep Distance Runner, Aid Sprinter

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Brisk winds which have hindered middle distance and distance runners have given Nebraska prep sprinters and hurdlers a great start in the outdoor campaign.

The sprint and hurdle charts rank as the most impressive early-season marks on record, but, of course, the breezes have been especially helpful for all of the leaders.

The new leader in the 100 is Omaha Central's Marshall Turkel, who logged a wind-aided :09.8 at the Doane Invitational.

Pressing for recognition are seven speedsters with 10 flat marks.

Central's Joe Orduna lowered his leading high hurdles mark from :14.4 to :14.2 and moved up to third place on the low hurdles list with a :20.2 which was into the wind rather than with it.

The slowest progress in the outdoor competition has been in the 440, 880 and mile. Omaha Central's Robert Allen continues to hold the top spot in the mile at 4:24.8, but that came indoors and his best outdoor effort is 4:33.3.

Class D standouts John Eckhout of Amherst and Eddie Case of Culbertson are the middle distance leaders.

Eckhout, who has top ten marks in both the 220 and low hurdles, took command of the 440 chart in the Ord Invitational as he turned in a :51.3.

He and Ord's Mike Zulkoski have been the only runners to crack the :52.0 barrier in the quarter mile.

Case, a veteran of three state meets, is more than a second faster than any other half-milers. He turned in a 2:00.4 in the Southern Frontier Conference meet.

Omaha Westside's Bill Jensen, a member of the state record-holding 2-mile relay team, moved into contention with a 2:01.5 in the Council Bluffs Relays Saturday.

Koufax Favors Arm But Beats Phils With 5 Hitter

. . . DETROIT SKIMS ANGELS IN 13

By Associated Press
Sandy Koufax was less effective but more successful than rookie Rudy May Sunday as the two Los Angeles left-handers made their 1965 pitching debuts.

Koufax, sore-armed ace of the Dodgers, struggled to a 6-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies and National League newcomer Bo Belinsky. The Angels' May, making his first major league appearance, was lifted after holding Detroit to one hit in nine innings and the Tigers finally won 4-1 with three tattered runs in the 13th.

The Phillies got five hits against Koufax, who appeared to be favoring his arthritic elbow. The LA swift struck out seven and walked five while continually changing up on his fast ball.

May, 20, did not yield a hit until pinch hitter Jake Wood doubled with one out in the eighth and the Angels in front

1-0. Wood scored the tying run when pinch hitter George Thomas' grounder went through second baseman Bob Knoop for an error.

The Tigers, hitless against reliever Bob Lee from the 10th through the 12th, broke the tie in the 13th on three singles, a passed ball, throwing error and squeeze bunt.

Southpaw reliever Bill McCool capped Cincinnati's 8-2 victory over St. Louis by coming on with the bases loaded in the ninth and striking out Bill White, Ken Boyer and Dick Groat in succession.

Eddie Mathews collected three hits, including his second homer, and drove in three runs in Milwaukee's 9-6 decision over the Chicago Cubs. Denny Menke and Ty Cline also had three hits apiece for the Braves, Menke connecting for a homer.

The New York Mets beat San Francisco 7-1 behind rookie Gary Kroll's four-hitter in the rain-shortened second game of a doubleheader after the Giants, paced by Jesus Alou's three hits, took the opener 4-1.

The Houston Astros topped Pittsburgh 3-1 in the first game of a twin bill, John Bateman driving in all three runs with a pair of homers. Bob Bailey's tie-breaking single in the eighth gave the Pirates a 5-4 nod in the after-piece.

Mickey Mantle's two-run first-inning homer triggered the New York Yankees' 10-4 romp over Kansas City. The Minnesota Twins beat Cleveland 6-3 behind the relief pitching of Al Worthington and Dave Boswell and a key two-run homer by Jimmie Hall.

Tony Conigliaro stroked four hits, including a two-run homer, as Boston clubbed Baltimore 11-4. The Chicago White Sox whipped Washington 5-1, with Danny Cater collecting four hits in the first game of a twin bill but the Senators won the nightcap 4-1 on Pete Richert's seven-hit pitching.

Lady pro golfers Jo Ann Prentice and Peggy Wilson agree with Miss Creed on a 50-50 rating. Ruth Jensen says it's 60% luck and Barbara Romack 70% luck.

For the duffer who counts it 100% luck even if he hits the ball, the percentage of skill involved is unimportant. And the Briton who popped in aces on the same hole two days running is probably not bragging about his skill.

Winds Hurt Prep Distance Runner, Aid Sprinter

Brisk winds which have hindered middle distance and distance runners given Nebraska prep sprinters and hurdlers a great start in the outdoor campaign.

The sprint and hurdle charts rank as the most impressive early-season marks on record, but, of course, the breezes have been especially helpful for all of the lead-

The new leader in the 100 is Omaha Central's Marshall Turkel, who logged a wind-aided :09.8 at the Doane Invitational.

Pressing for recognition are seven speedsters with 10 flat marks.

Central's Joe Orduna, lowered his leading high hurdles mark from :14.4 to :14.2 and moved up to third place on the 440 chart in the Ord Invitational as he turned in a :51.3.

He and Ord's Mike Zulowski have been the only runners to crack the :52.0 barrier in the quarter mile.

The slowest progress in the outdoor competition has been in the 440, 800 and mile. Omaha Central's Robert Allen continues to hold the top spot in the mile at 4:24.8, but that a came indoors and his best outdoor effort is 4:33.3.

Class D standouts John Eckhout, of Amherst and Edd Case of Culbertson are the middle distance leaders.

Eckhout, who has top ten marks in both the 220 and low hurdles, took command of the 440 chart in the Ord Invitational as he turned in a :51.3.

He and Ord's Mike Zulowski have been the only runners to crack the :52.0 barrier in the quarter mile.

Case, a veteran of three state meets, is more than a second faster than any other half-milers. He turned in a 2:04.4 in the Southern Frontier Conference meet.

Omaha Westside's Bill Jessen, a member of the state record-holding 2-mile relay team, moved into contention with a 2:01.5 in the Council Bluffs Relays Saturday.

Big George Mayer, who has scored eight aces including five in tournament play rates it 75% luck even for a pro.

So do Dan Sikes and Jim Ferree, with a total of 11 aces between them, though Ferree says "it's 95% luck" for the high handicap amateur.

The skill-luck ratio ranges down to a 50-50 estimate by several professionals, including lady ace Clifford Ann Crood, but the real point involved is to ask around about the prizes if you happen to nail a hole-in-one.

An ace on a regulation golf course, properly attested and registered in various contests, can win assorted items like a certificate signed by Arnold Palmer, ash trays, highball glasses, handsome trophies and maybe even a trip for two to Scotland.

Kerm Zarley, a young pro with three tournament aces already to his credit, makes it 50-50 among the pros with Bert Weaver calling it 60-40 for pros, 80-20 for amateurs.

Lady pro golfers Jo Ann Prentice and Peggy Wilson agree with Miss Crood on a 50-50 rating. Ruth Jensen says it's 60% luck and Barbara Romack 70% luck.

Three Cowboy Victories Push OSU Atop Big 8

By Associated Press

Oklahoma State moved to the top in Big Eight baseball with three straight over Kansas State while Missouri's defending champions took third with a sweep over Oklahoma, setting up an important three-game series between Missouri and OSU Friday and Saturday at Stillwater.

Oklahoma State whipped K-State 8-2 Saturday at Stillwater behind Richard Frank's six-hitter, giving OSU a 5-1 league record. Kansas dropped to second place at 4-2 by losing to Iowa State 12-3 at Ames in the deciding game of a three-game set.

Missouri clipped Oklahoma 9-1 at Columbia for a 3-2 record. Nebraska fell into a third place tie with Missouri when Colorado pitcher Adrian Mohr stole home in the seventh for a 3-2 victory at Boulder. The victory gave Colorado the series two games to one and dumped Oklahoma into last place.

OSU outfielder Tony Stark had four hits in five times at bat, giving 15 hits in 19 trips for his six Big Eight games, a .789 batting average.

In other series this weekend, Iowa State plays at Colorado, K-State at Nebraska and Kansas at Oklahoma. Two games are scheduled for Friday, one for Saturday in each series.

OSU needs at least one victory to stay ahead of Missouri in the race. Missouri could take over undisputed first place only with a sweep, and then only if both Kansas and Nebraska lose at least once.

Either Kansas or Nebraska could take over first place with a sweep providing Oklahoma State loses twice to the Tigers.

No Rookie Phenom On Yank Roster This Year?

... DON'T OVERLOOK A. LOPEZ

New York (UPI) — The royal and ancient order of Yankee-haters sees a glimmer of hope for '65.

The critics are insisting a chain has been broken, a well has run dry. The Yankees may be operating without their annual rookie phenom for the first time within memory of the oldest Yankee-hater.

No matter how pat the hand the pin-striped New Yorkers held in the past they generally found room for a rookie who'd help bail them out of their troubles. A year ago it was pitcher Mel Stottlemyre who rode to the rescue in the dog days of August.

This spring the seemingly endless supply was reduced to a trickle but foes of everything Yankee are hereby warned to keep a close eye on New York box-scores as the season progresses.

H. Lopez will be listed. That's good old hector, jack-of-many trades, whose talents are well known. A. Lopez is the gent to worry about. He's a legitimate rookie and a real sleeper in the Yankee rookie parade.

The "A" stands for Arturo, who came out of Puerto Rico and found employment in time as a bank teller in the Bronx not far from Yankee stadium.

Arturo soon discovered in the course of his budding financial career that Yankee Stadium had better pay-windows than those in his bank so he tried out at the stadium in 1961 and was signed for a $1,000 bonus.

Lopez said he was 23. Baseball apparently has aged him quickly for now he is rated at an estimated 28 or 29 but he hit .313 at Richmond last season and was on the Yankee out-field roster when the season opened.

This Yankee-hater who keeps tabs on such things can't afford to forget Arturo's name even if he gets a ticket back to the minors. Stottlemyre got his ticket last spring, too, but it was for a round-trip that brought him back in August to record a 9-3 mark plus three World Series starts.

The Yanks, of course, are noted for late-season trades that bring in helpful veterans but the backbone of the dynasty for years has been the influx of new talent.

Skipping over the earlier years, the parade in the last 15 seasons starts with Whitey Ford in 1950 and Mickey Mantle in 1951 (Along with Billy Martin and Gil MacDougald).

Moose Skowron and Elston Howard soon came along and in 1957 the club landed a star pair—Tony Kubek and Bobby Richardson. Norm Siebern, now with Baltimore, was a .300 hitting Yankee rookie in 1958.

Clete Boyer made it for good in '60. Even after expansion

Mike Strode and Gene Stephenson had three hits each in Missouri's 14-hit attack. At Colorado, Mohr's theft of home was part of a double steal. Iowa State's Bob Ziegler shut out Kansas after a three-run first.

Iowa State went ahead with a six-run second inning against Kansas starter Fred Littooy on two singles, three walks and an error.

Three Cowboy Victories: Sunday's Major League Box Scores

Push OSU Atop Big 8

By Associated Press

Oklahoma State moved to the top in Big Eight baseball with three straight over Kansas State while Missouri's defending champions took third with a sweep over Oklahoma, setting up an important three-game series between Missouri and OSU Friday and Saturday at Stillwater.

Oklahoma State whipped K-State 8-2 Saturday at Stillwater behind Richard Frank's six-hitter, giving OSU a 5-1 league record. Kansas dropped to second place at 4-2 by losing to Iowa State 12-3 at Ames in the deciding game of a three-game set.

Missouri clipped Oklahoma 9-1 at Columbia for a 3-2 record. Nebraska fell into a third place tie with Missouri when Colorado pitcher Adrián Mohr stole home in the seventh for a 3-2 victory at Boulder. The victory gave Colorado the series two games to one and dumped Oklahoma into last place.

OSU outfielder Tony Stark had four hits in five times at bat, giving 15 hits in 19 trips for his six Big Eight games, a .789 batting average.

In other series this weekend, Iowa State plays at Colorado, K-State at Nebraska and Kansas at Oklahoma. Two games are scheduled for Friday, one for Saturday in each series.

OSU needs at least one victory to stay ahead of Missouri in the race. Missouri could take over undisputed first place only with a sweep, and then only if both Kansas and Nebraska lose at least once.

Either Kansas or Nebraska could take over first place with a sweep providing Oklahoma State loses twice to the Tigers.

Mike Strode and Gene Stephenson had three hits each in Missouri's 14-hit attack. At Colorado, Mohr's theft of home was part of a double steal. Iowa State's Bob Ziegler shut out Kansas after a three-run first.

Iowa State went ahead with a six-run second inning against Kansas starter Fred Littoey on two singles, three walks and an error.

Cosa Nostra's Members Talk

. . . U.S. HAS INFORMANTS

Washington (AP)—The federal government is receiving a steady flow of high-level intelligence on the day-to-day operations of the crime syndicate known as the Cosa Nostra, a top Justice Department official says.

"This will be the cornerstone of the department's future activities in this field," Assistant Atty. Gen. Herbert J. Miller Jr., departing head of the department's criminal division, said in an interview.

"We now have high-level informants—both in prison and out," he said. "I think we're going to do better simply because we know whom to contact and how to convince him that it's in the best interest of his country to cooperate."

Miller said the precedent set by Joseph Valachi in revealing secrets of the Cosa Nostra to federal investigators has been a prime cause of further major intelligence breakthroughs.

Maybe Better

While he would not discuss details of the government's current intelligence operation, he acknowledged, "We do have what you like to call Valachi-type informants—and maybe better than that."

"If Valachi had talked and not lived," he added, "he would only have been an object lesson to the rest of the syndicate. But he's alive and well, and a big point has been made."

Valachi, 60, is a former Cosa Nostra narcotics pusher now serving a life sentence for murder. In 1963, he defied the syndicate's blood oath of secrecy and divulged to federal investigators some working details of the multi-million-dollar organized crime network flourishing in the United States.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, asked about Valachi's contribution to the Justice Department's future intelligence-gathering operation, confirmed Miller's finding.

Valachi was significant, Katzenbach said, because he showed "that a member of Cosa Nostra talked and is still alive. If one person can talk, others can talk."

Katzenbach said the Valachi revelations meant that "secrecy was breached at an important level for the first time—and I think that was very significant."

Unlike the Valachi days, however, when the department released much publicity about its talkative find, few details are forthcoming about the new wave of information emanating from the Cosa Nostra.

Family Formation Rules Goods, Services Market

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

The market for goods and services depends on family formation, and a recent statistical analysis of the marriage schedule of American women shows why the gross national product, which measures business volume, has been unprecedentedly high.

The fashion these days is for Rukeyser American girls to marry at a relatively early age. An inventory of woman-power by the Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company shows that thirty per cent of females 18-19 years of age are married. The ratio climbs rapidly to more than two thirds at ages 20-24 and to about seven eighths at 25-29 years. After middle age, the proportion shrinks through rising widowhood. More than a fifth of the women at ages 55-64 and more than half of those 65 and over are widows.

The actuarial figures indicate that of those widowed at 65, more than half live 15 years more and a third 20 years. The nature of American families is changing, and this has a significant bearing on business opportunity.

bands and a household. This force is engaged.

When women are in the age group 25-44, four fifths of the female population have husbands; ratio drops to three fourths for ladies in the age group 45-54. It falls to three fifths at age 55-64 and to one third at 65 or over. Thus women who technically become heads of households increases from 11% at ages 40-44 to 36% at ages 65 or over.

Working Women

The infusion of women over 40 into the work forces has been proceeding recently at an increased tempo. About a third of the total increment in the work force is accounted for by women 40 or over. It is apparent that many women who had earlier stopped working to raise children later re-enter the work force in the early ages, 18-19. half the females are in the work force, and the proportion is only slightly less at ages 20-24. It falls to two fifths or thereabouts at 25-34. At ages 45-54 half the females are working or looking for jobs, and the ratio at ages 55-64 only falls to two fifths.

Of the women at work, one seventh are in professional and technical employment. Nearly a third of the total are in clerical and secretarial jobs. And at the very early ages, about half of the girls employed are in such office work. The next main category is household work, in which for every 1,000 men, this is expected to change to 1,403 per 1,000.

Survival Capacity

Though starting out fewer in numbers than males, women improve their ratio in later years through greater capacity to survive. Women are fewer than men under the age of 25. Gradually, this differential is cut down, and by age 65 and over there are in the United States 1,276 women for every 1,000 men; by 1980, this is expected to change to 1,000 per 1,000.

Colored Birth Rate

Wolverhampton, England (UPI)—Conservative Party city councilmen have launched a campaign to show that within 35 years some areas of this midlands city could have a majority of colored residents. Figures show that the colored birth rate is eight times that of the white.

Cambridge, Mass. (AP)—A blue-eyed California coed captured the affection of even the most skeptical Harvard men in a wild weekend inspired partly by a computer.

Vicky Albright, a 20-year-old UCLA junior, attracted the attention of the Ivy intellectuals when she appeared on the cover of a recent Newsweek magazine.

Harvard's hardly austere Blackstone Law Club decided to honor her as "woman of the year" and took up a collection for her weekend trip from the West Coast.

Ideal Date

Into the act came an undergraduate firm, Compatibility Research Inc., which has been playing cupid with a computer. The firm volunteered to have the computer choose Vicky's ideal date.

A group of undergrads denounced her visit as "pure press agency" and defended the virtues of Radcliffe against Cover-Girl competition.

But Vicky's charm and versatility conquered Harvard to a man.

During her three-day visit, she romped shoeless in a touch football game by the Charles River, raced beaming on the back seat of a student's motorcycle and even gave dramatic readings from Ionesco and Chekhov.

The high point of the trip came Saturday night when Vicky was introduced to her

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:
Japanese provide a small piece of tightly wound towel (oshibori) to guests at homes and restaurants for wiping their hands.

One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the same Maria "a dull sailor and unfit for discovery."

Columbus himself had doubts about the seaworthiness of his flagship. He called the Santa Maria "a dull sailor and unfit for discovery."

It was once believed that ginseng tea, sipped on the death bed, would prolong life for five days — long enough to wind up earthly affairs.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It's simple. Write your name on a sheet of paper, or on a card. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the top right-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers (left-to-right). Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
